Overview

Josh is described by the directories as “everything you would want in a commercial junior”, “extremely bright and inventive” and “impressive on his feet”. He has extensive oral advocacy experience, including in the Commercial Court, Chancery Division and Court of Appeal, often against opponents in silk.

Josh is ranked in seven areas: commercial litigation (Asia Pacific), commodities (tier 3), civil fraud, insurance and reinsurance, international arbitration: counsel (tier 3), professional negligence, and offshore.

Josh has a particular specialism in private international law/the conflict of laws and is regularly instructed in international and cross-border disputes. Alongside full-time practice, Josh teaches International Commercial Litigation and Conflict of Laws at University College London. He has published widely on issues of jurisdiction and enforcement, most recently in Hart Publishing’s Landmark Cases in Private International Law.
